

The Association of Pennsylvania Municipal Management (APMM) welcomed more than 120 municipal managers, appointed officials, and a strong group of corporate partners, sponsors, and exhibitors to its 2026 Annual Conference at The Landing Hotel in Pittsburgh. The conference featured educational sessions, networking opportunities, and discussions focused on strengthening professional local government management across Pennsylvania.

During the Annual Business Meeting, APMM President Dan Santoro highlighted the organization's new strategic plan and recognized the collaborative work of members and leadership in shaping the future direction of the association. Pittsburgh Mayor Corey O'Connor also welcomed attendees during the annual meeting, emphasizing the importance of professional municipal leadership and regional collaboration.

The conference also included the election of APMM's new Executive Committee leadership team, including President Crandall Jones, Upper Darby Township; First Vice President Sara Gibson, Camp Hill Borough; Second Vice President John Schwend, Town of McCandless; Vice President At Large – East Luis Campos, City of Easton; Vice President At Large – Central Charles Gable, Gettysburg Borough; and Vice President At Large – West Harry Faulk, North Huntingdon Township.

Members additionally recognized outgoing leadership, past presidents, scholarship recipients, and professional development achievements throughout the conference and annual business meeting.
